

World Journal of Traditional Chinese Medicine (WJTCM)

The official journal of WFCMS and GP-TCM RA

Special Issue on Acupuncture-X

CALL FOR PAPERS

Guest Editor
Prof. Yong Tang

Guest Editor
Prof. Hojun Kim

Guest Editor
Prof. David Baxter

The special issue on Acupuncture-X focuses on the application of interdisciplinary methodology in acupuncture research. It has a broad scope, covering basic research to clinical studies regarding meridians, acupoints, acupuncture family procedures, acupuncture tools, acupuncture research approaches, acupuncture mechanism with a variety of novel techniques.

We cordially invite researchers and experts to contribute original research articles as well as reviews on Acupuncture-X.

Potential topics include but are not limited to:

- a. Application of Physics in acupuncture research
- b. Application of Chemistry in acupuncture research
- c. Application of Maths in acupuncture research
- d. Application of Neuroscience in acupuncture research
- e. Application of Evidence-Based Medicine in acupuncture research
- f. Application of Computer Science in acupuncture research

Authors can follow the author instructions and submit their manuscripts via the Manuscript System at:
<https://mc03.manuscriptcentral.com/wjtcn>.

Guest Editors

Yong Tang

Ph.D, Professor
School of Acupuncture and Tuina, Chengdu University of Traditional
Chinese Medicine, China
E-mail: tangyong@cdutcm.edu.cn

Hojun Kim

Ph.D, Professor
College of Korean Medicine,
Dongguk University, Korea
E-mail: kimklar@dongguk.ac.kr

David Baxter

Ph.D, Professor
School of Physiotherapy,
University of Otago, New Zealand
E-mail: david.baxter@otago.ac.nz

Deadline for submission

October 30, 2021

Intended publication date

December 31, 2021